Rain Caused Consternation at the Horse Show Yesterday. Various Happenings Are of General Interest

WELL, my dears, you should have seen it! Suddenly the clouds opened and the rain came down in buckets, in pitchers, in pails, in cloudbursts and we ran like mad to the covered stand, and those of us who had raincoats put them on and covered down under the awnings, while the poor horses and their judges shivered out there in the ring. Of course when it really poured the classes had to stop for a while, but then, we gossiped and chatted and had a great time. Incidentally, you know, this all happened out at the Horse Show yesterday. Every time I see Hope Montgomery I want to smile and feel happy. I never saw such a dear little person for spreading lovefulness about her. She is so pliant and pretty, and did you ever see a woman wear her clothes more beautifully, and equally have you often seen a woman who dresses so exquisitely? Certainly she was lovely yesterday in a satin-finished crepe de chine gown made with a very full skirt and with a cord drawn about the waist. The bodice was just a tiny bit open at the neck and was finished with a wide flat collar of seal fur, and under the two points of fur was a bit of hand-embroidery. She wore one of the new tam models of black velvet. She has that elusive, wonderful quality in woman called charm, to perfection, and I must say the opinion I have of her is shared by all who know her.

Every day girls grow bolder, don't they? Now I know, and so do you, that they smoke cigars at home and in cafes and hotels, but, somehow, it has not quite yet seemed the thing to walk gaily round the oval at the Horse Show flagged in on either side by a man, smoking a cigarette, while one discusses the merits of the various classes in the ring. But, my dears, I saw it with my own eyes, and the girl who did it is very pretty and has such a soft, young expression I wonder if she realizes that the smoking will take all the sheen from her hair and the light from her pretty eyes if she keeps it up at the rate she is going now.

Well, the world and his wife arose this morning at 4:30 and 5 G. M. and hastened out over hill and dale to the boogie field trials at the Bryn Mawr show, and if we did not have appetites for that breakfast at the William Strutt and Ellises afterward I assure you it was not their fault, for the tables were fairly groaned with good things, and it was great fun, you know, so sort of unique and different from the ordinary entertainment; one often has danced all night and then eaten breakfast before going to bed, but to rise at 4:30 and go to an affair of sunrise and then before continuing the day to stop for a big formal breakfast meal at 9 a. m. is a bit new, to say the least. Of course, the purely Hunt Club contingents were used to it, but the rest of us found it novel and enjoyed it accordingly. NANCY WYNNE.

AN ART SCHOOL THAT MAKES GOOD ACTORS

Here we find Frederick Burt, admirable actor of the only real business man in "The House of Glass," betraying the reason for his proficiency in playing railroad magnates: He is an artist. Burt stands just in front of the huge statue upon which he has worked at the Provincetown, Mass., summer studio of the Modern Art School. In the circle appears a view of the exterior of the old fishing loft, where beauty reigns.

MOVIES OPEN DOORS TO CHILDREN TODAY

Infantile Paralysis Ban Lifted. Sunday Schools Will Be in Session Tomorrow

Moving-picture theaters, which have been closed to children under sixteen years because of the infantile paralysis epidemic, were opened to them today.

Coincidentally with this, the quarantine placed on Sunday schools several weeks ago will be lifted and on Monday the public schools will begin their fall term.

Health authorities, both city and State, do not believe the infantile paralysis epidemic has entirely abated, but they are convinced the cool weather will stamp out the disease.

Two deaths and thirteen new cases, a slight increase in the number of the latter, were reported yesterday.

The steady decline of the disease throughout the city is emphasized by the fact that during the week only fifty-two cases were reported as compared with seventy last week, and eighty-five the preceding week.

One death and five new cases were reported to the Board of Health today. The dead child is Emily Ungerer, 13 months, of 221 North Fairhill street.

The new cases are: JAMES H. LYNCH, three years old, of 1818 MYRTLE SQUARES, four years, of 1801 Lemon street, and MARY ANN, four years, of 2114 Clearfield street.

MARTIN COHEN, four months, of 2456 North Second street, and MYRIAM SCHWARTZ, eleven months, of 1013 North Franklin street.

BAKERS READY TO RAISE PRICES

Italians of Southern Section Will Meet Tonight and Discuss Proposed Increase

Italian bakers in the southern section of Philadelphia will meet tonight to consider the question of increasing the price of bread on Monday morning.

According to John Sannini, 1420 Wharton street, the price of flour makes it impossible to produce bread at a profit.

The contemplated increase means that the loaf now selling for nine cents will be advanced to ten cents and the fourteen-cent loaf will be raised to fifteen cents. This, although apparently a slight advance, will mean much to the baker and will enable him to better combat with the present price of flour.

John Virdin, Chief of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, is making an investigation which may result in his asking the Council to enact an ordinance regulating the sale of bread by weight only.

He believes that under the commodities act of the Legislature, an opportunity is afforded the city through Councils to regulate the sale of bread in its own way. It is intended to prevent some bakers from reducing the weight of their bread.

The performance will be given at such a curious time to accommodate people who cannot attend regular performances.

The play will start about the time the milkmen are completing their rounds, the curtain falling at 12:45 P. M. The players will be treated to an elaborate luncheon served on the stage by the management. Neither costume nor make-up will be discarded for the function. At 2 o'clock the regular matinee will be given, and the cast will disperse to their hotels for dinner, returning to the theater for the night performance. And extra pay for the "milkmen's matinee."
